Earth's building blocks formed during the solar system's first

By examining carbon, the scientists found that a large fraction of the Earth's building blocks probably formed soon after the solar system did--within the first million years, much earlier and more precise than the previous estimate of sometime within the first 150

What is Ideal for a Small Solar Power System: Kits or DIY?

Obviously, you'll need a solar panel. For this article, we're focusing on 100-watt panels, as they are extremely common for small solar setups. These panels are typically around 4' x 2' and produce - you guessed it - 100 watts of electricity in perfect weather. 50 watt and 150 watt panels are fairly common as well.

Bifurcation of planetary building blocks during Solar System

Planetary systems, including the Solar System, form by accretion from a protoplanetary disk of gas and dust. Astronomical observations of these disks provide evidence for rapid dust coagulation (), show ringed substructure (), and indicate a decrease in total dust mass with disk age (), to below the total masses of fully assembled exoplanetary systems ().
