The simulator includes a range of tools that allow for the alteration of planetary orbits, the engineering of collisions between astronomical objects like planets and stars, and the visualization of the effects of these events in real time.

How do I move the ISS?

You must be properly oriented to dock. Then use the buttons on the left to translate your position Up, Down, Left, Right, Backward or Forward towards the ISS. Both controls have a precision toggle at their center. The default settings are small precise movements. Do not use large movements near the ISS.
