Overview

What is cable-supported photovoltaic (PV)?

Cable-supported photovoltaic (PV) modules have been proposed to replace traditional beam-supported PV modules. The new system uses suspension cables to bear the loads of the PV modules and therefore has the characteristics of a long span, light weight, strong load capacity, and adaptability to complex terrains.

What are the characteristics of a cable-supported photovoltaic system?

Long span, light weight, strong load capacity, and adaptability to complex terrains. The nonlinear stiffness of the new cable-supported photovoltaic system is revealed. The failure mode of the new structure is discussed in detail. Dynamic characteristics and bearing capacity of the new structure are investigated.

How do you calculate the number of photovoltaic modules?

Multiplying the number of modules required per string (C10) by the number of strings in parallel (C11) determines the number of modules to be purchased. The rated module output in watts as stated by the manufacturer. Photovoltaic modules are usually priced in terms of the rated module output ($/watt).

How do you calculate the energy output of a photovoltaic array?

The amount of energy produced by the array per day during the worst month is determined by multiplying the selected photovoltaic power output at STC (C5) by the peak sun hours at design tilt. Multiplying the de-rating factor (DF) by the energy output module (C7) establishes an average energy output from one module.

How do you calculate the cost of a photovoltaic array?

Photovoltaic modules are usually priced in terms of the rated module output ($/watt). Multiplying the number of modules to be purchased (C12) by the nominal rated module output (C13) determines the nominal rated array output. This number will be used to determine the cost of the photovoltaic array.

What factors affect the bearing capacity of new cable-supported photovoltaic modules?

The pretension and diameter of the cables are the most important factors of the ultimate bearing capacity of the new cable-supported PV system, while the tilt angle and row spacing have little effect on the mechanical characteristics of the new type of cable-supported photovoltaic modules.
