Overview

Should you buy solar stocks in 2023?

Add it all up, and the market simply threw the solar industry out in 2023. It's understandable that so many headwinds are causing stocks to drop, but there are also some reasons to be optimistic. The solar industry overall continues to grow both in the U.S. and internationally. That'll be a tailwind for a long time to come.

How does low demand affect solar installations?

Lower-than-expected demand from residential solar installers impacts companies like SunPower directly, and Enphase and SolarEdge are downstream from those installers. They saw fewer orders in the third quarter and expect sales to slow at least through the beginning of 2024.

Are high solar rates causing a decline in US residential solar installations?

The near-term outlook for solar has definitely taken a hit from high rates impacting demand – a forecast from Wood Mackenzie/SEIA is pointing to a YoY decline in US residential solar installations in 2024, weighed down by a sharp contraction in California.

What happened to solar energy stock?

The California-based company said the slowdown in solar-product sales would last into early next year. In recent market action, the stock fell around 17%, echoing an afterhours selloff Thursday. The stock recently traded at under $80. It hit its lowest levels in more than three years. The stock has dropped around 70% this year.

What happened to solar energy shares in 2024?

Shares haven't made much of a recovery in the first few days of trading in 2024. The biggest impact on solar energy companies in 2023 was interest rates. Higher rates make it more expensive to finance energy projects, and that cuts into margins for installers, putting pressure on the entire industry.

What impact did interest rates have on solar energy companies in 2023?

The biggest impact on solar energy companies in 2023 was interest rates. Higher rates make it more expensive to finance energy projects, and that cuts into margins for installers, putting pressure on the entire industry. The good news is rates are starting to come down.
