What's going on with solar stocks?

For many people, solar energy stocks have been one of the greatest disappointments of the last few years. The case for them is so obvious, with most of the world's governments committed to moving away from fossil fuels and towards solar and wind power.

Why is the Invesco solar ETF down 35% this year?

The Invesco Solar ETF (NYSE:TAN), an exchange-traded fund that tracks the MAC Global Solar Energy Stock Index, is down 35% this year. Much of the poor performance for solar stocks can be attributed to the global energy shock that followed the Russian invasion of Ukraine in February 2022.

Are solar stocks a risky investment?

In such an environment, solar stocks as a group remain higher risk than other sectors on Wall Street. Still, the long-term promise of solar remains significant in the age of climate change – so many investors are eager to get a foothold in the industry, regardless of the challenges.

Should you buy solar power stocks?

The long-term bullish use case for solar power stocks may be obvious and has become somewhat cliched, but it is true: There is significant and growing global demand for solar power.
