

Regulations and rules for photovoltaic bracket manufacturers

Overview

What are the standards for photovoltaics?

There are numerous national and international bodies that set standards for photovoltaics. There are standards for nearly every stage of the PV life cycle, including materials and processes used in the production of PV panels, testing methodologies, performance standards, and design and installation guidelines.

Are all PV products covered by IEC61730 'photovoltaic (PV) module safety qualification'?

In future it is expected that all PV products will increasingly be covered by International standard IEC61730: 2004 'Photovoltaic (PV) module safety qualification'.

Are there any UK standards relating to a PV installation?

While many UK standards apply in general terms, at the time of writing there is still relatively little which specifically relates to a PV installation. However, there are two documents which specifically relate to the installation of these systems that are of particular relevance:.

Are PV modules compliant with building regulations?

5.5.4 Where mounting systems are certified or listed using a named PV module or modules then only those modules shall be used. The system is compliant with current Building Regulations for weather-tightness, fire and wind resistance.

What standards are available for the energy rating of PV modules?

Standards available for the energy rating of PV modules in different climatic conditions, but degradation rate and operational lifetime need additional scientific and standardisation work (no specific standard at present). Standard available to define an overall efficiency according to a weighted combination of efficiencies.

Do I need a building regulations approval for a PV system?

Building Regulations approval may require the product to have passed the wind uplift, water penetration and spread of flame tests (see section 2.1.1.2). These will usually be applicable only where the PV is integrated into the fabric of the building.
