

Solar company promised one price but is asking for more

Overview

How much money can solar companies borrow to build a factory?

The Ministry of Industry and Information Technology issued a draft rule this month that solar companies can borrow only 70 percent of the money to build or expand factories, not the previous 80 percent. Still, the change was too small to reduce China's overcapacity, according to Frank Haugwitz, a solar industry consultant.

Are solar panel makers cutting prices?

Solar panel makers are cutting prices but still building factories. Gilles Sabrié for The New York Times Keith Bradsher, who has covered China's solar industry since 2009, reported from Changsha, China. Over the past 15 years, China has come to dominate the global market for solar energy.

Are Chinese solar-panel makers winning?

Chinese solar-panel makers are winning with an unassailable lead: they now account for 80 per cent of global production capacity. But the cost of that victory is now looking too high. China dominates the solar panel sector's entire supply chain. Prices, which are nearly two-thirds lower than US counterparts, have helped it to win market share.

Why are China's solar panels so expensive?

China accounts for 80% of solar module production capacity after years of subsidies, driving oversupply that has triggered a collapse in global prices and provoked import duties from trading partners to stave off being swamped by low-cost equipment.

Why is China letting solar companies fail?

The government decided 15 years ago to put extensive support behind solar power, and then let the companies claw it out. Beijing has shown a high tolerance for letting firms stumble and even fail in large numbers. Robots at a
