Any model for the origin of our Solar System must be able to explain the following fundamental observations. 1. Although the sun contains more than 99.8% of the mass of the entire Solar System, it only has some 2% of the entire angular momentum. 2. The planets all revolve around the sun in the same direction in a set.

There are two main schools of thought on the origin of the Solar System but both state that it was derived from an ancestral sun or solar nebula. These theories are: 1. that an external source acted to form the planets from the sun 2. or that the energy to form the planets was.

As a result of large advances in astronomical observations and quantum physics during the last 10 years, a new theory is now most.
