What are the health benefits of sunlight?

Of all the health benefits of sunlight, initiating the process of producing vitamin D in the body may be the best known. When UVB rays hit human skin, they interact with the 7-DHC protein there to produce vitamin D3. People can get vitamin D from their diet and supplements, but sunlight is an important source of this essential nutrient.

Is the sunlight advantage a regulated company?

The Sunlight Advantage is part of the NJR family of companies. NJR Clean Energy Ventures (NJRCEV) is not the same company as New Jersey Natural Gas (NJNG). NJRCEV is not regulated by the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities; and you do not have to buy products from NJRCEV in order to continue to receive quality regulated services from NJNG.

Why is sunlight important?

From promoting the growth of plants and crops to keeping people warm, sunlight is essential for life. In addition, many people enjoy the feeling of sunlight, and there is increasing evidence to support its many health benefits.

Is sunlight a good thing?

Sunlight does a body good, right up there with water, sleep and a healthy diet. Come to think of it—we're basically houseplants. Memes can soften the advice when it comes to serious topics, like health—including the meme that reminds us to drink water and get sunlight, because we're basically houseplants with complicated emotions.

What are the benefits of UVB rays?

Being in the sun generally makes people feel good, and there are many scientific reasons for this effect. One of these is that exposure to UVB rays causes human skin to produce beta-endorphins, which are hormones that reduce pain. Their other benefits include: Learn more about the health benefits of vitamin D here.

How does sunlight affect your health?

“Sunlight exposure can increase the production of white blood cells, which are responsible for fighting off infections and diseases,” Dr. Radermacher says. In addition, vitamin D produced from sunlight regulates the immune system and reduces inflammation, which helps fight off infections.
